Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

We would have been glad to hear President Roosevelt repeat for his fireside audience his Tuesday night message to Hitler. Instead a press representative read it over the radio. We ragard President Roosevelt's appeal for peace, addressed to the German fuehrer, as a document that deserves to be enshrined with the great and inspiring utterances of American statesmen and Presidents. In limpid language, in manifest sincerity, and in cogent reasoning, the President reached a lofty plane on which we devotedly wish he could remain in both foreign and domestic relations for the rest of his administration.

Our own opinion is, frankly, that, figuratively speaking, both Premier Chamberlain and President Roosevelt have been casting their pearls before swine. We regard any man who authorizes the murder of his political enemies, many of them old comrades and friends, cruelly persecutes and terrorizes the Jews, or other people in his power, as a ravening monster accursed of God. If President Roosevelt's appeal bears any fruit in the half-mad brain of Germany's dictator, it will be because 130,000,000 people, possessing half the gold in the world, were represented in that message. Hitler cannot have forgotten the part the United States played in the world war. To him, undoubtedly the President's words are a threat, though there was nothing in them that could remotely be construed as a threat. It was rather a prayer addressed to the obsessed ruler of a deluded and over-trusting people. We can only surmise its effect, but it does seem probable that the fuehrer was influenced to postpone his march into Czechoslovakia, and to call together the premiers of England, France, Italy to confer with him in Munich on questions involving the peace of Europe.

It is also possible that neither the appeals of President Roosevelt or Premier Chamberlain had anything to do with the postponement of war. The rumor that the German army command refused to march when Hitler ordered them to, may be true, and if true, that alone were a paramount reason for postponement. Or, it is quite possible that Mussolini whose head sits much more firmly on his shoulders, may have given Hitler some sound advice. In any event the world breathes more freely today. War may inevitable be, but it is again postponed. Our young men, your sons and mine, are for the moment safe.

We suspect that the great majority of people in the United States who read the foreign news and ponder on the words and actions of Hitler have made up their minds that under him, Germany is a constant menace to world peace. The same sentiment applies also to the Japanese military clique that wars on China, blasting women and children into eternity, and to Italy under Il Duce, who slaughtered the Ethiopians with poison gas and possessed their country These dictators believe that force can win whatever it is they desire, and that force is justified by the national needs.

There is no such thing as absolute neutrality in human experience. We try to be neutral, to be fair minded, take a disinterested view. The judge on the bench is legally neutral, but his humanity, nevertheless, sympathizes with one party or the other before the bar. His judgment will approach as near to absolute justice as human understanding and legal training will admit, but his inner conviction is unchanged. With the common run of citizens no such approach to just decisions is possible in contemplating the barbarities of governments, which inflict torture and death upon innocent people in the pursuit of national objectives. We are violently partisan. All peoples are so in the mass.

Thus it is that, one must take the pessimistic view that if war breaks out in Europe, we shall almost surely be drawn into it. Hitler, one of the two bullies of Europe, it can well be assumed does not regard the President's appeal to him as a threat. And while the President never in his career made a more able or a more noble presentation of human sentiment, or never was more careful to avoid anything that could anger or cause fear, when one thinks of the deep-seated hatred the vast majority of Americans feel for dictatorial governments, one must come to the conclusion, that, although the President was entirely innocent of uttering a threat, nevertheless in such a message, a threat there is, implicit. A nation that has entered a foreign war to make the "world safe for democracy" will go to war again to defend democracy.

DR. VAN ALSTYNE TALKS TO ROTARY ON CZECH CRISIS

Dr. Richard VanAlstyne, professor of history, and head of the department of social studies in Chico State College, yesterday addressed the Nevada City Rotary club on some aspects of the crisis arising from the Czechoslakian-German impasse. The talk was of intense interest owing to its timely character.

At the outset, Dr. Van Alstyne, called attention to the fact that the Rotary ideal of international understanding, and, in case of misunderstanding, of arbitration, was apparently not only realizable, but is perhaps being realized faster than many would think.

Twenty four years ago, Dr. Van Alstyne stated, if one ruler expressed the intention of appropriating or taking possession of a slice of territory of a neighboring country, there never for a moment would have been question of war. It would have been a certainty, Especially would this be true if any national head voiced such bitterness and called his neighbors such approbious epithets as Hitler has in the past few days.

The fact that war has not resulted, and it now seems reasonably sure will not result, indicates, in the opinion of Dr. Van Alstyne, that peace can be preserved even under the most provoking conditions.

European governments are accustomed to look for boundaries which are marked by great natural barriers, such as mountains or wide rivers. Between Canada and Mexico, Dr. Van Alstyne said, we have no such boundaries. We have grown accustomed to feeling quite safe in having only a line demarking national boundaries. in the case of Canada, running often across a flat open country. In the case of Mexico, there is a river to be sure, but of such character as to form little impediment to invasion.

When Czechoslavikia came into being as a result of the treaty of Versailles, it was quite natural that its boundaries should be fixed by those remaking Europe's map, along the tops of a mountain range, even though in so doing minority groups, such as Germans, Hungarians, and Poles were included along with the Czechs in the newly created republic.

It is human nature to make mistakes, said Dr. Van Alstyne, all individuals make mistakes and rectify them every day. Nations make mistakes and they must be rectified if the world is to live in peace. When the Sudeten Germans were included in the same boundaries with the Czechs, Dr. Van Alstyne intimated, the treaty makers of Versailles, made a grevious fundamental error. England and France are now agreed that this error should be corrected but they do not propose that it shall be violently corrected or that war shall be waged on the Czechs. What is now being decided at the council of four nations at Munich, is the method of transferring Sudeten Germans and the homeland peaceably to Germany, and providing an ethnic boundary instead of a rugged natural boundary between the enlarged Germany and the diminished Czechoslavakia, and providing also for maintaining and guaranteeing to the Czechs their new boundary.

Dr. Van Alstyne stated that although he was more often than not opposed to the New Deal policies, he wished to declare his hearty accord with the appeal and the protests made by President Roosevelt to Aloph Hitler.

HOME . . . the most vital of all American institutions, the very bulwark of civilization, founded on the dreams and ideals of a progressive people. HOME . . . the symbol of social advancement! From the Home emanates the song of industry. The rhythm of ax and saw biting deeply into tall timber; the mill grinding out its melody of clean smooth timber; the symphony of hammer and saw and plane as the Home takeson form and substance.
Then the dream a reality. The Home completed. Peace, Contentment, Security.

Adequate Housing Still Lacking For Growing Population

In five years the population of Nevada City and Grass Valley has practically doubled and housing has not yet caught up with the needs of this increased population. The reason the population has doubled is due in large measure to the influx of miners. The influx of miners is of course due largely to the fact that the increased price of gold makes available profitable reduction ores that were formerly marginal in value. Since March, 1933, the number of men employed in mines has doubled. Those who have followed the monthly mine employment survey made by the Nevada City Nugget can easily verify these figures.

Anyone checking back in memory will remember that five years ago homes and business places were very scarce and far between in the four mile stretch between Nevada City and Grass Valley. Today there is visual evidence that this four mile strip is being rapidly closed. Often Nevada City and Grass Valley are referred to as the "twin cities". As a matte of fact, from a physical standpoint they are rapidly becoming one city. Service stations, grocery stores, restaurants, pleasure resorts and homes are rapidly filling the four-mile gap. Land values along this strip of highway have doubled in five years, and in some localities are more than double the prices quoted in 1933.

There has been a steady, and fom the time point of view, a rapid growth in all areas adjacent to the two cities. South of Grass Valley on the road to Auburn, there has sprung an almost continuous row of homes to a point a quarter of a mile south of LeBarr Meadows. East of Nevada City on the Tahoe Ukiah highway, the development of a suburban district, is only slightly less than that south of Grass Valley

On every road leading into either Nevada City or Grass Valley, one may find new homes, some of them as upon Town Talk on the old turnpike between Grass Valley and Nevada City, very fine homes, indeed. One reason so much building has been done to shelter Nevada County's new population, is that new comers were unable to find suitable apartments or house to rent They were actually forced to build. That many of these are two and three room cottages to begin with his nevertheless an indication that. Nevada County's new comers are thrifty minded and resourceful. They are acquiring a stake in the county. The two room cottage in time can, and aften does, grow to the five room house. Far better as a rule, to put a little money and elbow grease into a home, than to pay rent even though the rented home might present a more attractive appearance.

THREE STREETS READY FOR OIL

Street Superintendent H. H. Hallet moved his crew of workmen to the lower Grass Valley road area and started grading the street from its junction with the deep cut on Sacramento street around to Valley street that crosses from Glennons Service Station to Pine. High street between Washington and Nevada has been graded and is ready for oiling. Finlay street from the Downieville highway to near the Johnston's Greenhouse and a portion of Spring street are ready for oiling. The crew will return to complete some work on Factory street shortly. The oil for the streets has arrived and as soon as the weather settles oiling will be done.

The suit against the Pacific Gas & Electric company, brought by Indian Flat residents and land owners claiming damages as a result of a forest fire in September, 1936, as a result of the utility's alleged negligence in preventing fire hazards along its right of way, proceeded with the hearing the testimony of various plaintiffs. Attorneys estimate that the plaintiff's testimony is more than half completed. There is a possibility the plaintiffs will rest Saturday at noon.

MERRITT RECTOR TO MANAGE BANK IN GRASS VALLEY

President L. M. Giannini of the Bank of America has appointed E. M. Rector vice president and manager of the bank's Grass Valley branch and H. A. Curnow manager and assistant trust officer of the Nevada City branch. Both appointments will be effective on October 1.

Mr. Rector has been closely identified for nearly forty years with Nevada County banking activities, being a member of the pioneer family which organized the Nevada County Bank in 1901, later acquired by the Bank of America in 1927. He has served as vice president and manager of the Nevada City branch since 1932 and now succeeds to the position formerly held by his brother, the late G. J. Rector, who died on September 1.

In addition to his banking activities, he has also been vice president of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Nevada City Board of Education and taken a leading part in the work of various fraternal, civic and business organizations. During his chairmanship of the building committee of the Board of Education two fine new school buildings have been erected.

Mr. Curnow, who is promoted to the managership of the Nevada City branch, has also been long associated with Nevada county banking interests, joining the Nevada County Bank at Nevada City in 1912, being manager when that bank was taken over by Bank of America in 1927.

He is at present chairman of the Nevada City Boy Scouts and active in both the local Masonic and Elks lodges. For many years he has been a member of the Nevada City Board of Education.

John J. Fortier, now assistant cashier and chief clerk at the Grass Valley branch, will return to the same position in the Nevada City branch. He began his service with the bank in Nevada City in 1926 and was for many years actively interested in that community's civic and business life. He has also been a prominent member of the Elks.

Roy W. Stafford of the bank's auditing department in San Francisco will succeed Mr. Fortier as assistant cashier and chief clerk of the Grass Valley branch. He was first associated with Bank of America in Stockton and has gained a wide experience in several of the northern California branches.

Building Industry Is Active in Nevada City

By O. J. ODEGAARD
Mgr. of Nevada County Lumber Co.

The construction industry locally in the Grass Valley-Nevada City area reacted very promptly and very decisively to the threats of labor trouble last spring. After the usual winter dullness there was an expectation of the usual spring pick-up which did not materialize. However mid-summer saw local feeling much better and from July on the building industry has been in a very healthy state with practically all competent mechanics employed and at times some shortage of workmen. This however has not at any time been a serious factor here.

The efforts of the administration through FHA to stimulate the construction of homes and the remodeling and repairing of existing structures have met with much success backed as they were by the co-operation of the local banks.

Some of the ideas that might be of interest to local people who are building mineded follow.

A possible sale of the property later should always be kept in mind, unlikely as it may seem at the time of building. This means of course that conventional buildings should be constructed as much as possible. Homes of odd floor plans or with walls constructed of unusual materials should not be recommended unless the owners are in a position to figure that it will be their permanent home. If it is to be a permanent home with no thought of resale of course the owner may safely give way to his personal ideas of what he wants in a home.

If the house is of a type to warrant the additional outlay it will pay the owner to hire an architect. This is a legitimate part of cost under FHA rules. Of course many of the homes being built by local contractors are designed by such contractors and the contractor acts in such cases as the planner although he may not be actually an architect. The result to the owner is much the same in each case as the contractor generally is very efficient within the range in which he undertakes to advise his client.

Do not push away new ideas about materials or construction without giving them serious consideration. Just because something is not done as our grandfathers did the work is no reason to condemn a method.

New methods of heating homes, new methods of insulating homes, many new methods of finishing interior walls; all these should merit your consideration. Venitian blinds are a fine addition to new homes. These are but very few of the items to be considered in the planning of your new home.

The above remarks are to be taken by those who are able to employ

What Ails Labor?

Practical application of the National Labor Relations Act in 1937 more than doubled the number of industrial strikes in 1936.

The Bureau of Labor statistics' figure for strikes in 1936 is 2,172. In 1937, there were 4,740 strikes. In 1936, there were 788,648 workers involved, and in 1937 there were 1,860,621 workers involved. In 1936 strikes involved only 13,901,956 man-days, whereas the figure jumped to 28,424,000 man-days in 1937.

Chairman J. Warren Madden of the National Labor Relations Board said in September, 1937, that "the National Labor Relations Act was based upon the assupmtion that if the denial of the freedom to organize causes strikes and if the government should protect that freedom, the necessity for such strikes would disappear and the strikes with them." The quotation from the chairman continued in pointing out his view that "the logic of this assumption seems unchallengable and nothing has occurred since the enactment of the law to throw doubt upon the assumption."

It would appear that this sharp increase in the number of strikes was a consequence of the declaration of public policy contained in the Labor Relations Act and the openly biased administration of the act by the present board.

The policy of the Roosevelt administration and its spokesmen condoning the illegal sit-down strikes or actually favoring such activities also contributed largely to the increase in such strikes. Statements made by Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor; Mr. James Landis, at that time a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and other high Administration officials, distinctly indicated that the admnistration favored such strikes. President Roosevelt's studied silence undoubtedly condoned the use of such illegal means. Though the administration had demanded the passage of the Wagner Labor Relations Act for the purpose of controlling strikes, yet shortly thereafter it was condoning a type of illegal strike that greatly increased the amount of industrial disorder in the country.

The current allegations that the Board favors the CIO in determining upon appropriate bargaining units are substantiated by the following statistical information. The National Labor Relations Board, from October 1935 to December 1937 conducted 966 elections. The CIO won 47.1 per cent, the AF of L 26.3 per cent, independent unions 12.1 per cent, and all representation plans were defeated in 14.5 per cent. There were 208 direct contests between AF of L and CIO unions and the CIO won 76.9 per cent of these.

It is common knowledge that where the Board feels that the group which it favors will not carry an election at a given time, it will not order an election. Consequently, it appears desirable to amend section 9 (c) so as to compel the Board to determine such questions within thirty days after the request is presented.

Previous to the New Deal it was the policy of the National Government not to interfere with the development of the American labor movement. The New Deal reversed this policy.—Contributed.

PAUL VILES TO LOOK OVER 1939 BUICKS

With the introduction of new Buick models scheduled in the near future, Paul Viles of Nevada City and Grass Valley, local Buick dealer, has gone to Los Angeles to visit the Southern California Buick plant and take an advance look at the forthcoming line of cars.

The occasion, he said, is the preannouncement sales convention of the Pacific Coast Buick dealer organization, at which the new cars are shown to the dealers for the first time and the 1939 sales program discussed.

He said that word from the factory indicates that an enlarged program will be undertaken for 1939 in view of the encouraging business outlook and the increased demand for automobiles which already is being felt.

"We have had a very satisfactory year with the 1938 models," Mr. Viles said. "Buick ended the model year in fourth place on a national basis and obtained a much bigger share of the total automobile business than last year.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder apprehensively
At this time of the year,
About the man who seems to look
Exactly like a deer;
There are no hoofs upon his feet.
No antlers on his head,
But still "mistaken for a deer."
Was what the headlines said.

I wonder why the hunter ever mistakes another man for a deer; why a deer? He never commits the error of mistaking a comrade for a coyote, a fox, or a bob cat; he never explains a painful or tragic hunting accident with these words: "I thought he was a dove;" but during every hunting season we are shocked by misadventures which seem both inexplicable and unnecessary.

Can it be that some malicious Puck of the forests has the power to confuse the vision of the experienced hunter or transform an unfortunate pal into the semblance of an antlered buck? The idea seems fantastic, but no more so than the circumstances which provoked it. There must be some explanation material or metaphysical, which if understood, would exonerate the huntsman from charges of carelessness which are often brought against him.

I wonder what good it does to make derogatory remarks about radio programs; complain of one and your very dearest friend will elevate his eyebrows and utter this dogmatic speech: "you may not enjoy that program, but there are thousands of excellent and intelligent people who do. If you can't endure it, turn the dial."

I wonder if the sun of human happiness is to be blacked out by the shadow of a mailed fist! are all lovely harmonies to be lost amid the cacaphony of strident voices extolling the glories of armed conquest? Is civilization, itself in danger? Are we humans losing faith in our own ideals and our belief in the upward trend of the race?

Dismayed by the complexities which harass the present and menace the future, we can only hope that from this period of world madness some light may shine which will enable earth's inhabitants to find a better and a happier pathway through the years to come, and that great power may come at length to rest in the hands of those who possess the wisdom and the strength to use it wisely and for the benefit of mankind.

But that scaffold sways the future, and within the great unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own."

Uncle Silas says: "It has been very plainly demonstrated to this generation, that a combination of Nietzschean philosophy and certain forms of modern ideology, are certain to create government of the dictator, by the dictator, and for the dictator."

DUST BOWL GOLD RUSH TO CALIF. IS SLOWING UP

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

California's twentieth century "gold rush", which has brought a stampede of more than 400,000 destitute to the state in less than four years—drawn by the lure of fatter relief payments, bigger pensions, or better promise of employment—has passed the peak and is definitely tapering off.

That reassuring news comes from W. V. Allen, California Supervisor of Farm Placement Service for the United States Department of Labor.

Mr. Allen, whose department has given splendid cooperation in seeking to stem the tide of indigents advises that: "From current information received from the border check station inspectors, there seem to be a good many migrants leaving California at the present time and very few entering the state."

That report—if the trend continues—is of vital importance to all California, but of even greater importance to rural California, for Mr. Allen's study of the Dust Bowl invasion also reveals that most of the migrants have settled in farming areas and have become a burden on farm taxpayers as well as a contributing cause to farm labor difficulties.

Indicative of the importance of the migrant problem to California agriculture, Mr. Allen makes this significant analysis: "Of the 90,740 out of state persons actually counted at the borders as entering the state of California in search of work in 1937, 78,332 or 86.3 per cent weer farm laborers migrating from the Middle West drought states."

And as further corroboration of the fact that most of the penniless wanderers have settled in rural counties, Rex Thompson, superintendent of charities for Los Angeles county, reports that 97 per cent of all persons receiving indigent aid in Los Angeles have lived in California more than five years.

Nor is the crisis past, even though migration to California has temporarily slackened Mr. Allen emphasizes—and with good cause—that the present drop in migration has been achieved only as a result of a concerted drive by federal agencies, cooperating with California civic groups, to halt the flood of indigents. And he warns that if California's "new settlers," who have found sustenance here, do not stop writing to relatives and friends in the east and mid-west and urging them to come to California, the "gold rush" of the desperate will again achieve dangerous proportions.

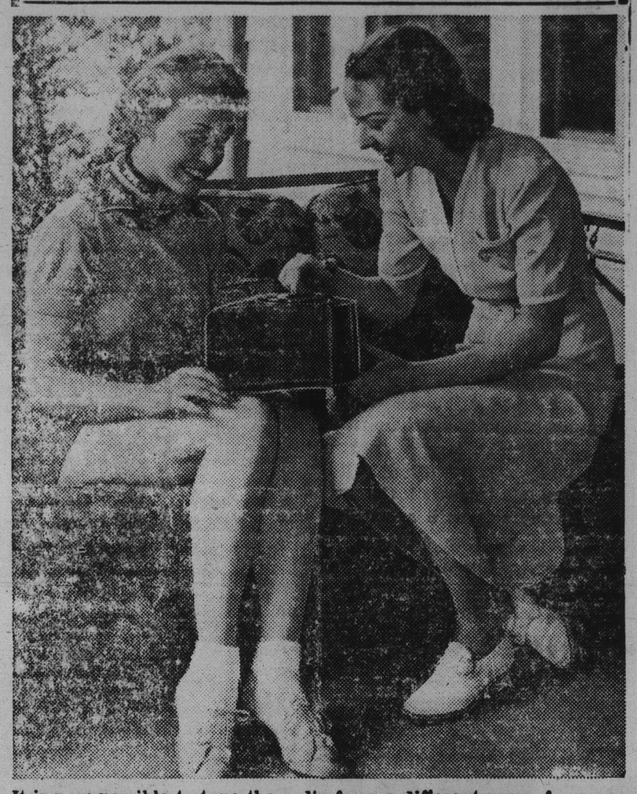
No Need to Leave Comfort of Porch To Tune Radio With Mystery Control



It is now possible to tune the radio from a different room, from any remote point in the house, from the porch, from a seat under the trees, all without a wire, as a result of the most amazing invention since radio itself came into being. This remote control of the radio is exercised with the little box shown on the knees of the young lady in the porch swing. It is known as Philco Mystery Control because it tunes the radio, changes stations, controls the volume, or shuts it off entirely by the mere flick of a finger on the dial. Engineers call it the device that will revolutionize radio and radio listening. It is remote control to the nth degree, and operates without wires.

DEBRIS BURNING MUST BE DONE WITH PERMIT

The state fire laws require a burning permit for debris between April 15 and December 1, according to DeWitt Nelson, supervisor of the Tahoe national forest at Nevada City. Anyone with debris to dispose of should contact the local forest officer and secure a permit. Nelson states that the forest service is interested in the disposal of debris and will gladly cooperate as much as possible with those having material to burn. Local papers will inform the public of the lifting of the ban if weather conditions permit this being done before December 1.

BUILDING ACTIVITY THOUGH BRISK,

BUILDING INDUSTRY ACTIVE

the architect or contractor to do the work. There is another class of home builders however and there are many of them in the community. These are the people, usually young folks just getting a start, who may be a little short on money but are full of pep and energy and they want to tackle the job of building their own homes. They usually have to handle the job of building their own homes. They usually have to have advice from their carpenter friends or their material dealer as to procedure and probably help in framing the structure. This class of home owners deserves every consideration and the experienced carpenters and contractors usually are willing to give them advice.

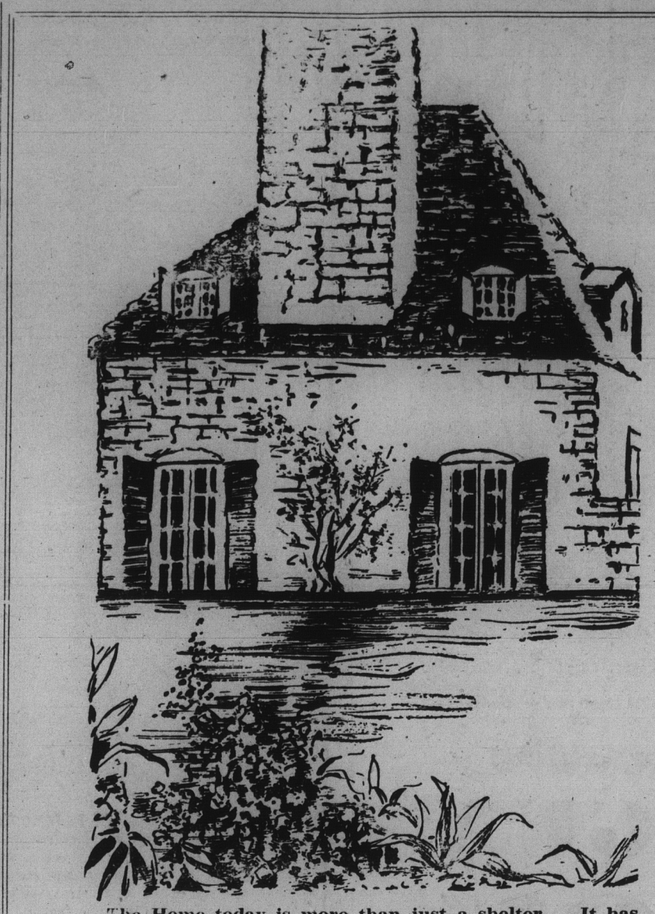
It is a pleasure to see these homes usually small, go up and the "kick" that the owners get out of the task of erecting them. And the finished structure is surprisingly well built in most cases although now and then something happens to tie up the job. In these cases the real estate man is usually on the job to help the owners dispose of the property to someone else with as small a loss as possible to the original builder.

Regarding alterations and repairs not much can be said. Each job is an individual problem. There is no question but that most of the old homes of these mountain communities can be much improved with the expenditure of modest sums. The writer's own home comes to mind and a new porch on the sunny side of the house, new front door, new and modern bath, and many other improvements limited usually only by finances could well be installed.

Among the perennial and regular replacements in a good home the roof is the largest item of expense. Our roofs here seem to run more to wood shingles, cedar and redwood, and to split sugar pine shakes which are a product of our own nearby sugar pine forests. No mistake can be made in using either of these as experience has shown that they have no equal for long life and freedom from trouble when properly applied and when one does not expect a 60 year old roof to give the same service as a new one. And there are many roofs in the community that have already well served their owners past the 30 year mark and are still good. Shingles being made at the present time are better selected, thicker and better manufactured than were the shingles of thirty years ago.

Old Gentleman—"You're an honest boy, but it was a $10 bill I dropped, not ten ones."

Youngster—"I know, mister, but the last time I found a $10 bill the man didn't have any change."



The Home today is more than just a shelter. It has taken on an entirely new significance. The modern keynote in Home construction is comfort, convenience and beauty of design.

The evolution of Architecture from the early pre-historica bodes of the came men and three dwellers up to the varied phases of construction and design in vogue today, makes an intensely absorbing story.

Changes in man's mode of existence made necessary changes in Home construction, and Architecture gradually took on new lines of beauty and symmetry.

The improved modern Home of today is a standing monument to Man's victory over time and space. It is a manifestation of his mental and spiritual advance.

MUCH BUILDING ACTIVITY IN THIS DISTRICT

A partial survey of new homes, houses for rent, remodeling, repairing, was made Tuesday and a surprising number were found.

Miss Emma Ramm, formerly of near Camptonville who has resided in San Francisco for years, is building a new duplex house and three car garage on Grove street. The high wall in front of the lot has been cut down to give a driveway to three garages under the apartment on the east. This upstairs four room apartment will be occupied by Miss Ramm. The apartment on the west will also be most modern in every detail and have three rooms. Large closets are found throughout the comfortable rooms. Palco bark treated redwood bark, was used for insulating. Plaster wall board will give a neat finish to the rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wyant purchased the house of Mrs. Clara Angiolini Pratt on Boulder street and moved household furnishings into it last week and are now living there.

Mrs. Mabel Hamilton, who has a fancy work shop in the Suss building has taken an option and long time lease on the building. Furniture arrived Monday from Southern California to place in two apartments and a room to rent in the upper story. The upstairs have been remodeled, repainted and papered. Downstairs she has enlarged her store to give her much more room.

Ben Stedham who resides at the corner of Nimrod and Nile streets has a new four room house praticaly completed in the large lot where a house burned about a year ago.

Mrs. Blanche Neaves, who opened the Shamrock Cafe and operated it for some time, later seling to Mr. and Mrs. Wyant, has given a contract to Robert Stedger and sons to erect a new four room house on her lot at the corner of Zion and Sacramento streets. Mrs. Neaves is visiting in Nevada City a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Carl Foote and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kemper have completed remodeling and painting the two story house at the junction of Nevada and Washington streets. The white house with green trimmings is very attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Childs have just completed a beautiful modern new home further out on Nevada street and are comfortably located. A large garage was constructed in the rear and the yard will be completed later.

A delightful little community has sprung up in the area between the Tahoe-Ukiah highway and the Willow Valley road as far out as the county hospital. Several of the homes have been enlarged. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clark are building two new houses one for their home. Mrs. Clark's brother, Mr. Stratch is building a home near them. Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Smith are enlarging their home adding extensively. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jones almost in front of the county hospital is practically completed. Their furniture came down from southern Oregon early this week and as soon as electric lights are installed they will be able to move into the modern home. The outside is finished in half round cedar logs with oil treatment.

Just back of the Jones home is the new home of Mr. and Mrs. John McQuay. A new porch and attractive garden have been completed in recent weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Blodgett have built a cosy little cottage of three rooms.

W. H. Daniels, local real estate dealer is making an addition to his home west of the Tahoe Ukiah highway. Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Stritzky are building a new modern home on the site of the one burned on August 6.

Cutting steep hylrauliced banks at the northeast entrance to Nevada City and levelling it into home sites and green lawns at the John Mlnarich home and the nearby auto court have resulted in making a beautiful. bright entrance to the city.

Lawrence Motors built their plant about four years ago when there were about three or four houses in the district. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lawrence bought the 11 acre Arnhart place. The rustic well with its old oaken bucket Mr. Lawrence has built invites everyone to take a cool drink from water drawn from beneath the lava cap. The well was on the back porch of the Arnhart home. The Tahoe Ukiah highway ran through where the home stood. The covered well and the one at the Ben Bost home are two others noted about Nevada City. Mr. Lawrence has enlarged his plant and built two small cottages just back of his motor plant. This season he has constructed a nice cottage on the knoll west of his home. Plans are to build others farther up the slope later on.

Since the Lawrence family moved from San Francisco to the present home about twenty houses have been built in the neighborhood. Herbert Whip bought part of an old orchard across the road from the motor plant and has nearly completed a pleasant home. Carl Noren has completed a four room cottage in the same section. Several others have been completed in recent months.

In Nevada City it is noted that the Moody and Costello homes are being reroofed and remodeled on B street. Lawrence Smith is building a neat house on his lot at the corner of East Broad and Main streets.

The home of Mrs. W. H. Wright on East Broad has been reshingled. Ray Murchie has reroofed his home in the same part of town. Mrs. Kittie Kimball has practically finished remodeling a small house she purchased a little over a year ago and has one of the most charming little homes in the city near the city limits on the Downieville highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Woods came up from their Oceanside home south of Los Angeles last week and made an inspection of their properties in Nevada City. They have decided to build a small house on their Pine street property not far from the high school.

A. B. Innes of Oroville, who is operating a drag line dredge west of Nevada City, has taken a five year lease on a portion of the home of Mrs. Jennie Preston on upper Boulder street. He has made many changes in remodeling the east side of the big two story house into a most modern and convenient apartment.

In the business district of Nevada City the Leon merchants have purchased two or three brick buildings in old Chinatown and men are now tearing it down to make a place for a big two story building. The lot is quite long and a drive in market will be on the first floor with living quarters above.

George W. Jones, who is tearing down the brick buildings in old Chinatown, is building a cottage on his mining claims in the Quaker Hill district. Nearly all material going into the new structure will be hand hewn giving a most pleasing rustic finish.

CORN GROWS TWELVE HIGH IN THIS COUNTY

Last evening James R. Maben of Maben Dairy south of Grass Valley, brought to the Nugget office two stalks of corn that are 12 feet tall. They were picked from a five acre field on the ranch that will be cut for silage. Taller salks have toppled over. The seed came from the Turlock district in the San Joaquin Valley and are noted for quality of stalk, bearing qualities and size. Some of this corn will be on exhibit at the county fair in Grass Valley. Mr. Maben who comes from a farming district in the east has found his section of Nevada County to be particularly suitable for the dairy industry. His farm is almost independent organization with its cows, hogs, chickens, garden. He has an immense cold storage plant at the dairy that also cares for perishable products such as meats.

Otto Gruenwald, who owns property in Indian Flat, came up from San Francisco and is spending a few days visiting old time friends. He plans to return to Nevada City in the spring to remain permanently.

Will Davis, employee of the Sacramento Union, in Sacramento, is enjoying a month's vacation at his ranch in Willow Valley. He is straightening up and repairing about his property. Mrs. Davis is with her husband.

Mrs. George Roe and daughter, Veronica, who live at the corner of Spring and Pine streets left Tuesday for Sacramento to reside. Mrs. Roe's youngest son, Robert, will remain with Mrs. Stanley Householder to continue his studies in school.

Uniformed Sudeten Germans marched in the parade which featured the harvest festival celebrations at Oberleutensdorf, Czechoslovakia, a short time before Adolf Hitler's momentous Nuremberg address. Konrad Henlein, Sudeten leader, was scheduled to address the thousands who attended, but was forced to cancel his appearance after being summoned by Lord Runciman to a parley in an attempt to settle the crisis. Declared Herr Frank, substituting for Henlein: "We have carried on a struggle for 20 years and the final battle is in sight."

FOREST FIRES HARD TO FIND SOMETIMES

Lost—One fire. Last seen by lookouts at Crystal Peak and Martis Peak in Bear Valley. Finder please communicate at once with the District Ranger at Sierraville. It is not likely that this ad would bring results, according to DeWitt Nelson, forest supervisor at Nevada City, because the fire is in a comparatively inaccessible part of the Tahoe Forest, and forest officers have been searching for it for several days. To the average person it might seem silly to spend time looking for a fire that did not make itself evident—it would seem too small to be dangerous. Such is not the case, Nelson said, a tree might be struck by lightning and give up a puff of smoke now and then, just sufficient for a lookout to sight, but ground crews be unable to find it. If not found and totally extinguished, it is very likely, during a period of high temperature, low humidity, and windy conditions, to break out and result in a disastrous fire involving large expenditures and restruction of forest resources. Thus the slogan is always "get your fire"

Bancroft was introduced by Mayor La Guardia, as "my friend, a real dirt farmer, who for some unknown reason wants to be a Senator." More than 1200 Rainbow Division veterans and their wives were in attendance.

AUGUST GAS TAX TOTAL $4,742,539

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 29.—Gasoline sales increased during August, it was reported today by the State Board of Equalization.

The gallonage distributed last month amounted to 158,084,636, on which a tax of $4,742,539.08 was assessed. This amount represented a gain of $94,139.08, or 2.03 per cent over the tax assessed for the same month of 1937. It also represented a substantial gain over the tax of $4,548,146.85 reported for July of this year and brought the total for the first eight months of the calendar year up to $34,288,539.15.

Oil companies reporting sales of more than 300,000 gallons in July were listed by the board with the explanation that resale of gasoline previously taxed and exempt sales to the federal government or in interstate or foreign commerce accounted for differences between total sales and taxable sales.

TWINS 84 YEARS GIVEN HONOR IN FAMILY REUNION

Several Nevada City relatives and friends attended a family reunion at the Cecil Curtis home near Bowman Sunday when two ladies, Mrs. Casmore and Mrs. Lena Hackett, twins aged 84 years, celebrated their birthday. Mrs. Casmore is the mother of Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Hackett came up from Hanford with several relatives. They are considered the oldest twin women in California and there were 54 present, coming from Nevada county, Fresno county, San Francisco and Reno.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were recently transferred from Lake Spaulding near Alta to their present home, a beautiful place with great green lawns and trees. Sunday the dinner was served buffet style out on the lawn. The group remained until late in the evening. Among those from Nevada City attending were Mr. and Mrs. C. Muscardini, Elisha Curtis, Mrs. I. Henwood and two children and Miss June Curtis.

STUDENTS ON BUS NOTE MANY LAW VIOLATERS

Earl Rickard, Jr., junior college student attending school in Auburn, states many motorists do not observe the law when passing school busses. The state law requires all cars to stop when a school bus either stops to take students or let them off. The new bus is a large vehicle carrying about 39 pupils and it is stated cars pass around it so narrowly missing the persons entering or leaving the bus that it makes even the driver shudder at the narrow escapes they have.

Mr. and Mrs. John Figurski are completely remodeling their home on Nivens Lane into a most modern duplex house. Two rooms have been added and a front and back porch will add much to the attractive appearance of the house.

Alvin Welsh, ex-service man, went to Letterman hospital in the bay region two weeks ago where he was operated upon for sinus trouble. He may have to remain some time.

REAL ESTATE IN GOOD DEMAND SAYS BROKER

By W. H. DANIELS
Licensed Real Estate Broker

During the past several months there has been a brisk demand for Nevada City and county properties. Much of the inquiry has been for good building lots, home building lots in or near Nevada City. The demand has been augmented no doubt by the assistance offered by the FHA and the helpful attitude of Bank of America in cooperation with potential buyers and builders. More than a dozen such sales are of very recent occurrence.

Homes also have come in for quite a considerable call. Recent sales include several properties ranging from one to five thousand dollars. There has also been made a considerable investment for income. With all of this however, there is a definite shortage of desirable home accomodations, for rent or lease, at returns compatible with investment.

Another activity, indicating interest in this community, both as a good place to live and one offering attractive investment possibilities, is the large number of inquiries coming in for mountain homes or ranches, large land tracts and mines.

Nevada county—unexploited, unadvertised, except by word of mouth—of visitors many of whom have returned and settled—Nevada County with its native beauty, its accessability, its good highways and agreeable elevation, its friendly people, is becoming known and established as a good place to live, and a good place to prosper. The interest and activity in real estate reflects this good and wholesome condition beyond any question.

Mrs. Tuttle Attends A. A. U. W. Conference

Mrs. Raglan Tuttle will leave today for Oroville where she will visit her sister there. Mrs. Frederick Faulkner of San Francisco will join her in Oroville Friday. On Saturday they will attend the regional conference of the American Association of University Women which will be held in Chico on Saturday.

ANOTHER BOCA MAN SLUGGED

A. C. Jaggers, foreman on the Boca dam federal project near Boca came to Nevada City yesterday and swore to a complaint charging "John Doe" Armstrong of Truckee with the charge of a felony for a severe beating administered by Armstrong on the foreman. Jagger filed the warrant of arrest in Judge W. L. Mobley's court. Jagger is from Sacramento and stated that on Wednesday he went to Truckee and dispatched a check to his home and then went to a beer parlor with a brother. He went to the toilet and as he opened the door to come out the alleged Armstrong hailed him with "is your name Ace?" and hit him in the face cutting Jaggers' lip. Before he could defend himself he was knocked down and "stomped" on by Armstrong with his feet, according to Jagger.

After the fight Jagger went out on the street looking for the justice of the peace and while he was looking for him saw his attacker trying to get into his own car. Jagger struck him in the face but he managed to get into the car and get away. Jaggers face is badly cut and bruised.

Jagger related "Red" Adams stated a week ago that either he would "get" him, (Jagger) or else Armstrong would. "Red" Adams is stated to be a CIO organizer. The Boca dam is expected to close down for the winter, in about six weeks. There are over a hundred men on the job who will then scatter into California and Nevada.

TUBERCULIN TESTS WILL BE GIVEN IN OCTOBER

Commencing the week of October 17, tuberculin tests are to be conducted in Nevada City high school. These tests are to be administered under the sponsorship of the Nevada County Tuberculosis Association, an affiliate of the California State Tuberculosis Association.

Freshmen, sophomores and seniors are to be tested. In fact, anyone wishing the test. Juniors are to be eliminated due to a change in the schedule last year when tuberculin tests were not given.

Out of an approximate 525 children previously tested, 90 were X-rayed and only one case of disease was discovered.

Miss Elezearian of the California State Tuberculosis Association will come here to assist Dr. Harry March of Grass Valley, and nurses Mrs. Hefelfinger and Miss Dallas Smith, and other local nurses in carrying out this campaign.

Considering the tuberculin tests to be given in our high school, a brief resume of the tuberculosis situation as it exicts today is of interest.

The splendid efforts made yearly by the Tuberculosis Associations, both state and local, cannot be over estimated. Through the annual sale of Christmas Seals marvelous work is being carried on in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. This Christmas Seal fund is used to employ hundreds of field nurses who keep a vigilant eye on the condition of health of the school children in their community. This money is also used to X-ray and to give tuberculin tests to thousands of school children. Also the Tuberculosis Association publishes numerous booklets and pamphlets on the prevention and cure of tuberculosis.

This constant supervision of the health of our youth is perhaps the greatest sole factor in the eradication of this insidious disease.

For tuberculosis is youth's most exacting enemy. It attacks children and adults alike, but is most fatal between the ages of 15 and 25.

Tuberculosis is really a very common disease. So common in fact, that literally thousands of persons are walking the streets of our cities and towns infected with this malady, yet tragically unaware of what ails them. Either through ignorance or neglect they are unfamiliar with the causes, effects and the symptoms of tuberculosis. Thus they carry on in their regular every day routine often with fatal results. For unless the disease is detected in its early stages, a good many months, more often years, must be spent recuperating. It quite often takes from one to five years for a moderately advanced case of tuberculosis to become arrested. So one can readily see how important it is that the disease be caught in its incipiency. In this way much can be done toward checking its spread.

If a child shows a positive reaction to the tuberculin test the presence of tuberculosis somewhere in the system is indicated. The next step is to X-ray that child's chest. If the X-ray show definite evidence of the disease the child must be taken under special medical supervision. The important thing now is that the child be given lots of wholesome, nourishing food, fresh air, most essential of all, rest in bed. In this way the child's resistence is built up and the advance of the disease checked.

Methods of treatment in older chronic cases are different. Today surgery occupies an important place in tuberculosis. On the theory that the lung at complete rest has the better chance to heal, pneumothorax (air) is introduced into the chest with a hollow needle. The air fills up the chest cavity between the chest wall and the lung and by compression prevents the lung from functioning. One advantage of this method is that it is not permanent, for when the doctor considers the lung sufficiently healed, (usually from one to five years) no more air is injected into the chest; the air already there is absorbed by the system and the once diseased lung expands again.

Another more serious method is the cutting of the small nerve at the side of the troat near the top of the chest. This nerve controls the diaphragm, which is instantly paralyzed. If only a small section of the nerve is removed it grows back in time. But in more severe cases the entire nerve is drawn out. This procedure is used mostly in cases where the disease is confined to the base of the lung.

The most severe method of all is the surgical removal of portions of the ribs over the infected part of the lung. The lung collapsed in this manner is done so permanently. The extent of the disease determines the number of ribs to be taken out. Some cases have had the entire twelve ribs on one side removed, and also a few ribs on the other side. But in these cases the infection existed in both lungs. However, it has been authoritatively stated that man can exist on but one fourth of the lung capacity he now uses.

FOREST SERVICE VISITED

Tahoe National Forest headquarters had visitors from different sections of the country yesterday. Fred Douthitt of the San Francisco headquarters office and G. I. Salmon coordinator of flood control from Washington, D. C., called on Superintendent DeWitt Nelson. Mr. Salmon was making a tour through the various regions getting first hand information on the flood damage situations. "Kelley" Trough, superintendent of the Mono National Forest at Minden, Nevada, came over to inspect the rustic signs made at the local shop and wants some of them made for his national forest.

TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL

Miss Elma Hecker, superintendent of the Episcopal church Sunday school, announces Sunday school will reopen at 10 o'clock Sunday, October 2. This will be sort of a get-together meeting as Miss Hecker has called all parents and teachers to discuss fall plans. There are 100 children on the Sunday school rolls and between 75 and 80 attend regularly.
